In this unprecedented times, physical distancing is limiting the most cherished aspect of student advising and learning process. In response, our academic community has transitioned to online learning and is utilizing various technology to tackle today’s challenges.

Thus, the need for a tool like Degree Tracker to monitor degree progress, verify eligibility for graduation, and create essential reports has become even more vital and we are ready to support you in every way possible to facilitate our shared mission of achieving student success.

Forging Ahead...

One School at a time!

As we continue to onboard Degree Tracker to more schools, we are happy to announce we have finalized setting up the tool for the School of Public Health which will be ready for Go-Live before the end of this semester.

In the mean time, we are forging ahead to introduce Degree Tracker to Laney Graduate programs and we are currently at the requirement gathering phase of the project with expected completion in June to be ready for Fall 2020 semester.

Batch Summary (One-Pager) Report Implemented

This Spring the Degree Tracker team implemented an exciting enhancement where departments can run batch Summary reports which is particularly instrumental in screening graduate candidates for degree completion.

Brandi Baker from the School of Business registrar office underscored this in her feedback to this development saying, “We ran reports on all of our programs and the files are significantly smaller, which will make a huge difference during the degree clearance process. This is very exciting news!”

We hope other school administrators also share this view as several departments have long been requesting for this enhancement. In comparison to the existing multi-page PDF report, the batch Summary takes significantly less time to review and is by far user-friendly in format.
